Chapter 1 – Project Journal

Problem/Purpose:

Observed Phenomenon

Typically in conversations about "war" white people commonly use the words "peace" and "justice." However when asked to give the specific meaning and/or definition of these words they are quite often illusive and vague.

Goal

To illustrate the importance of non–white people using the counter racism codified definition of "peace" and "justice", in conversations where these words are being used.

Idea to Test

White people as a collective, are very aware of the "correct" meaning of the words, "peace" and "justice", however under the System of Racism/White Supremacy when a white person uses the words "peace" and/or "justice" what they are actually referring to is:

Peace equating to all non–white people (preferably through deceit, however if that fails, indirect force, or direct violence) complying with Racism/White Supremacy.

Justice as defined under Racism/White Supremacy equates to all those identified as white by other white people receive a majority of the resources a majority of the time, and the power to control these resources (including all non-white people) all of the time.

Therefore;

When engaging in conversations or forums, where "peace" and/or "justice" is the discussion, it is imperative to use the following codified definitions.

Peace

(1) Truth, plus justice, plus correctness.

(2) The universal non-existence of falsehood, non-justice, and incorrectness.

Justice

(1) Balance between people.

(2) Guaranteeing that no person is mistreated, and also guaranteeing the person that needs help the most get the most help.

(1) In order to remain focused on the "truth" of the matter.

(2) To promote correctness.

(3) Minimize confusion.

(4) Inspire victims to ask questions.

(5) Promote logical thought among victims.

Question:

What is actually being said in conversations where white people use the words "peace" and "justice"?

Research:

Research was conducted by taking the counter racism codified definition of the words "peace" and "justice", from "The United Independent Compensatory Code/System/Concept " and, "counter-racism.com", comparing them to definitions given in books, online documents, articles and television. Then constructing questions that would cut through the redirect and reveal truth.

Hypothesis:

Expected Results

Expected Results

When a white person and/or people are asked one or more of the experiment questions, they will react in one of the following ways:

1. Give a very vague answer and refuse to elaborate on the unclarity of it.
2. Attempt to confuse the questioner.
3. Insist the questioner knows what they are talking about.
4. Change the subject.
5. Refuse to answer.
6. Become angry , and verbally insult the questioner.
7. Attempt to make the conversation personal..
8. Give a conflicting answer that is untruthful and opposite of the codified definition of peace and justice.
9. Show evidence of knowledge of the actual meaning of peace and/ or justice, then quickly change the subject.

Procedure:

Recording Data

Data will be recorded by saving conversations in rtf file format, when information is being gathered from an online forum.

and/or

Recording live conversations with a micro cassette recorder and typing a transcript of the information.

Materials Needed:

A forum where white people are discussing "peace" and/or "justice" (in the case where information is being gathered from online)

A white person willing to engage in conversation about "peace" and/or "justice" (in the case where information is being gathered live)

Experiment questions

White Person to the cause

White Person that u need to find who or what are wrong

White Person well it is

White Person we use it in the wrong way

White Person at times

White Person sure

Is it possible to produce justice in the world among all people?

How does one produce justice in the world among all people?

White Person again yes

White Person it all depends on how it is handled

White Person by those who get to the top

White Person u have crooked judges

White Person as u have in other positions

White Person we can only

White Person try to present

White Person to the young experiences

White Person from top level people

White Person let me give u an example

White Person sure

I can assure you no one is going to talk with the young ones, and to say the wrong tools they use to reach the top. No one will admit publicly that they had to use artificial means, to get to the top. Their going to focus on the positive side. Saying they had determination they had a mission to get to the top, or effort, work, because they wanted to help other people, they wanted to speak out in a good sense of the word. Do you understand? No one is going to stand up their telling the world all the things they do, and that is very important because you look at the media you look at the newspapers, and what comes out, what sticks out is so many scandals. I don't know where you live, but here in Brazil we see scandals on a daily basis. In government, in private organizations, among judges, and that is very wrong because it takes the credibility not only from the individual, but what they represent, and when you lose credibility in an institution, especially justice for example that is the end of that. So we have to start re-establishing new grounds.

Peace is so complex that we will have to talk about different topics, that put together, will result in positive attitudes in our world. Therefore will produce a more tranquil "shall we say" situation. We're not going to be judging the wrong side of our world society, because each one of us, especially those of us who have had access to a good education, must have some idea of what is right and wrong.. Now many people consciously go and do wrong knowing full well consciously they are doing wrong. Now I cannot point out to everyone. To say listen your attitude was wrong. You planted which are getting today from years back. But when you start pointing out to the young ones, that are still "shall we say in formation" of opinion then you can help people that have nothing. People that don't even have dignity, because they were never given dignity. People are still treated like things. When you start changing this sort of attitude.Dignify the youngster give them a share of responsibility towards himself ,and towards others. I am sure that the end result is going to be positive. We have to always try to place ourselves in the other person's shoes. Here in Brazil I see it on a daily basis we have property around the corner. People live in really terrible conditions, and yet society puts the blinkers on just like a horse. Why should we look? We better not look, and millions of examples. We do have property ,we do have social violence and it is escalating. You know we talk about wars but if nothing is done these wars will continue to happen, and the scale just grow, because evil spreads very fast very fast

Why is violence escalating?

Why is there currently a like of peace and/or justice in the world?

Well, when you say there is violence, they are several types of violence. There is social violence, there is the discrimination. People that don't except someone because of their color or their religion. There's jealousy, there is greed. At the same time there is the feeling behind those that have nothing, that they feel excluded from society, and when you have nothing you will resort to violence, because you have to survive. So it is a violence that happens because of survival reasons. It's very easy when you have a home, when you have food, when you have sufficient money, to survive to be okay, but when you have access to nothing not even the basic needs that a human being needs well then your going to become violent. Not only that, you know you do have the evil side of society that takes the opportunity. Like here in Brazil we see it among the young ones that get involved with the drug dealers. They use the children they call them airplanes. These are little kids that transport drugs. Not a lot but they are the ones who deliver. There is a film that you should see, it was called Statuevissle . Now you see Statuevissle is about ten miles from where I am , and I live in the best place in Rio. in the film they show you to what level children have gone to and they establish the law. It has reached that level .Yet society isn't doing that much. They expect the police force to be doing. They expect the military to be doing. Yet they have not stopped to question itself how come these children have gone so far as to be holding a real gone, and they will use it, because they don't have the maturity to realize the damage they are causing. Killing an innocent person or to be killed. It is very very dangerous what we're going through here. We've got to bring it to peoples attention. Its not just Iraq and the Muslims , but there are certain things happening in everyday life and society that we can turn a blind eye to, not anymore.

What collective, among all people, have the "most" power to produce peace and/or justice among all people?

What collective, among all people, have the "least" power to produce peace and/or justice among all people?

Well that is one good reason on bringing the students to one place. Hopefully we will be receiving as many people as we can. I will be suggesting when we are sending the letters to the Universities and on the official site between four and 6 students and 1 or 2 representatives of the Universities. We will suggest also that they bring some materials, projects, materials that they have been developing themselves. There are many Universities that are already developing different projects that focus towards the same topic. I am not the only person on the planet, thank god. We have to bring people together all this integration is going to be a vital start turning this huge wheel which is call planet Earth I can remember Echo 92 when I worked with John Major the British prime minister and the British delegation. Many people there reaction was oh its not going to work. People had the negative attitude towards all that was going to be presented, but I can assure you we have had many positive results after Echo92 society is beginning to realize that

Conversation 4:

For example?

We have many things. For example recycling. People are much more aware of it. People are beginning to replant. Before we would just cut trees. No one cared. Also Pollution, controlling pollution and air pollution and the waste that goes into our rivers and streams, oceans. People are far more contentions about all of that. Which wasn't before at least here in Brazil. It wasn't so before Echo 92. Don't forget you have to see both both First World countries and Third World countries. Its quite a clash we live on one planet, but there are many worlds to itself. If you can understand. By moving of these people and bringing them together and the exchange of ideas and information of projects that are developed and are being developed, as a result of some of these projects is going to be very rich. We will all benefit because by the time the students return to there countries of origin they will have a lot of homework with them. I want the universities to accept and recognize the honest voluntary work that each student will start to develop among there own communities in terms of administrative work, teaching ,whatever. They're so many different ways and deficiencies in our world and the students have so much to offer.

Note: why are white people having meetings about world peace, yet talk about saving trees? What does saving trees have to do with peace?

How do you bring balance between a Third World in a first world country?

Well for one the distribution of wealth. You see the Third World countries literally get hit over the head by having to pay a lot for money they had given to develop. The interest rates that first world countries charge to Third World countries is horrendous. But I cannot enter this issue because it would divert from where we what to head. You know? I feel that there are always means of helping others to help themselves. The University students also have an ability to be inventive because of the knowledge they have. They can organize groups of various types

Note: Red Flag! The minute we get to revealing truth, its called diversion? Where exactly was she headed?

So thats where our focus should be? Helping others to help themselves?

Exactly! helping others to help themselves. Give back self esteem to these people and then you start to diminish the violence. Like I said its a long process is not a one day sort of thing. I don't have a magic wand. You know when you plant a seed you have to water it. You have to start looking after it and doing the course of time it starts to sprout and this is what were going to be doing. But because there is a continuity that is good, because every two years we meet again in different countries. New students will bring some of first results of what they started to develop. Its a turning point in society. You see through my work I'm giving the world an opportunity to start a new ground-basis for something more constructive and less destructive, because we seem to be focusing on the destruction side of our planet and that is wrong. We've seen it We're not here to bring in politics, or religion. We're not here to be telling each other rules. We're here to learn from each other and to help other people to help themselves. how old are you Questioner? Come to the mic!

Note: Helping others to help themselves. Is it not the nature of needing help, to need assistance? If one does not have the access to resources and is in need how can you help yourself?

At this time the Questioner ends the conversation because it is getting personal. What does the Questioners age have to do with peace and justice?

Conclusion:

It is important at this point to reemphasize that these words be strictly defined especially when engaging a "mixed" group – white and non whites. this is done in an effort to concretely center the conversation on the same topic, using the same words, with the same meanings; giving no doubt as to the subject matter and focus of conversation to those who would willfully attempt to stray from the truth and gravity of our situation and agenda.

The data shows that White people as a collective, are very aware of the "correct" meaning of the words, "peace" and "justice", however under the System of Racism/White Supremacy when a white person uses the words "peace" and/or "justice" what they are actually referring to is:

Peace equating to all non–white people (preferably through deceit, however if that fails, indirect force, or direct violence) complying with Racism/White Supremacy.

Justice as defined under Racism/White Supremacy equates to all those identified as white by other white people receive a majority of the resources a majority of the time, and the power to control these resources (including all non–white people) all of the time.

Therefore;

When engaging in conversations or forums, where "peace" and/or "justice" is the discussion, it is imperative to use the following codified definitions.

Peace

- (1) Truth, plus justice, plus correctness.
- (2) The universal non–existence of falsehood, non–justice, and incorrectness.

Justice

- (1) Balance between people.
 - (2) Guaranteeing that no person is mistreated, and also guaranteeing the person that needs help the most get the most help.
- (1) In order to remain focused on the "truth" of the matter.
 - (2) To promote correctness.
 - (3) Minimize confusion.
 - (4) Inspire victims to ask questions.
 - (5) Promote logical thought among victims.

Reflection:

Analysis

If conducting this experiment again, I would have been more aggressive when asking questions. The difficulty in finding willing participants, and my inexperience, resulted in my approach being more meek than originally planned. I now suspect that even at the risk of losing a willing participant a more aggressive (however, not rude) form of questioning would have resulted in the revealing of more truth.

Chapter 2 – Scientific Method

Observed Phenomenon:

Typically in conversations about "war" white people commonly use the words "peace" and "justice." However when asked to give the specific meaning and/or definition of these words they are quite often illusive and vague.

Hypothesis:

When a white person and/or people are asked one or more of the experiment questions, they will react in one of the following ways:

1. Give a very vague answer and refuse to elaborate on the ambiguousness of it.
2. Attempt to confuse the questioner.
3. Insist the questioner knows what they are talking about.
4. Change the subject.
5. Refuse to answer.
6. Become angry, and verbally insult the questioner.
7. Attempt to make the conversation personal.
8. Give a conflicting answer that is untruthful and opposite of the codified definition of peace and justice.
9. Show evidence of knowledge of the actual meaning of peace and/ or justice, then quickly change the subject.

Experimentation:

Find forums where white people are discussing "peace" and/or "justice". Engage them in a series of questions on the topic.

And/or

Initiate conversation with a white person on "peace" and/or "justice". Engage them in a series of questions on the topic.

Questions

- 1.What is your definition of peace?
- 2.Is it possible to achieve peace in the world among all people?
- 3.How does one achieve peace in the world among all people?

- 5.Is it possible to produce justice in the world among all people?
- 6.How does one produce justice in the world among all people?
- 7.What is the correlation between peace and justice?
- 8.What is more important peace or justice?
- 9.Is it possible to have peace without justice?
- 10.What collective, among all people, have the "most" power to produce peace and/or justice among all people?
- 11.What collective, among all people, have the "least" power to produce peace and/or justice among all people?
- 12.What should be done with those who are not willing to promote peace and/or justice?
- 13.Is violence sometimes necessary to promote peace and/or justice?
- 14.Why is there currently a lack of peace and/or justice in the world?

Recording Data

Data will be recorded by saving conversations in rtf file format, when information is being gathered from an online forum.

And/or

Recording live conversations with a micro cassette recorder and typing a transcript of the information.

Materials

A forum where white people are discussing "peace" and/or "justice".

A white person willing to engage in conversation about "peace" and/or "justice".

Experiment questions.

Anywhere from 3 hours to one week to conduct the Experiment, depending on available resources

A micro cassette recorder (or other recording device, such as, computer, video recorder etc.) to record data.
